

York Regional Police Hate Crime Unit

York Regional Police recognizes the community-wide impact of hate crimes and vigorously investigates all occurrences of hate crime and hate bias incidents. We have a dedicated investigative unit and specially-trained hate crime investigators at each district to assist officers in investigations where hate may have played a part. Team members are also called upon as subject matter experts and provide training to partner agencies, community and school groups on effectively combating hate. Fighting hate and bias crime effectively relies on partnerships. The response to this growing problem cannot be made by law enforcement alone. Government, police, community organizations and individuals must be committed to working together to stem hatred in society.
